Hanakoganei House – Tokyo

White walls and colourful curtains in Tokyo's Hanakoganei house.

Starting Point

This cubic building in Tokyo is flooded by light entering through windows of different sizes. The interior is designed as an open space and there are several floors. The dominant feature is streamlined furniture with white walls.

Solution

Koichiro Tokimori uses curtains as pops of colour. The window fronts across all floors have curtains made from the SINFONIA fabric. This light soft classic comes in a wide range of colours, adding modern freshness to a home.
